DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 through 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kennedy in view of Kanie et al.

Kennedy discloses a color calibration for LCD panel including : a cell display, driver means (refer at blocks 36 and 38 in Fig.2), and data control means (refer at block 30 in Fig.2 ,lines 3 through 8 at column 3, lines 43 through 48 at column 5) as recited in claims 1 and 5, except the buffer means for delaying of at least one of the three primary colors. Kanie et al teaches the buffer means as claimed. Note Kanie et al Fig.2 and Fig.4, lines 31 through 44 at column 5 wherein R data is delayed from DATUM 1 to DATUM and G data is delayed from DATUM 2 to DATUM 4 . Therefore it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the buffer means taught by Kanie et al in the logic array block 30 of Kennedy's system because this would eliminate any phase shifts in the color signal transmission as taught by Kanie et al. (refer at column 1, lines 24-42).

As to claims 2-4 and 6 Kennedy teaches adjusting means, voltage correction in Fig. 2 block 30 and Kanie et al teaches simultaneous output in Fig. 2 and Fig. 4.

Conclusion

2. Kennedy, Kanie et al., Wozniak, Tsong et al., Takashi et al., Mano et al., Stewart et al., Ishii et al., Taylor and Takahashi et al. are made of record as teaching related display systems with color corrections.
